Connectors

BPMN description

BPMN defines a set of arrows to connect the different process elements as well as the process themselves. They are used to:

- Describe the order in which different steps are to be executed
- Associate additional information such as comments
- Depict how messages are to be exchanged between different swimlanes

UML representation

Connectors have no UML representation as they are not yet relevant for the execution of the process.